

He was a cyber criminal and he used social engineering for his own benefits, like he used to call up people and use talk to them portraying that they are talking to someone else but not Kevin. He started with telephone and also then entered into much tech-related serious crimes and was captured by FBI.

But despite his illegal activities, he possessed a lot of knowledge and experience in cyber crime.

He later changed sides and is now helping Government and corporates make their systems more secure.

He has this very famous statement

People are the weakest links. You can have the best technology, firewalls, intrusion-detection systems, biometric devices - and somebody can call an unsuspecting employee. That's all she wrote baby. They got everything.

That statement shows that he was a social hacker

