KEVIN MITNIK

He was a cyber criminal and he used social engineering for his own benefits. He used to call up people and speak to them portraying that they are speaking to someone else and not him. He started with telephone and later entered into much tech-related serious crimes and was captured by FBI.
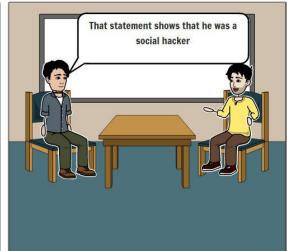

But despite his illegal activities, he possessed a lot of knowledge and experience in cyber crime.

He later changed sides and is now helping Government and corporates make their systems more secure.

He has this very famous statement

People are the weakest Links. You can have the best technology, firewalls, intrusion-detection systems, biometric devices - and somebody can call an unsuspecting employee. That's all she wrote baby. They got everything.

That statement shows that he was a social hacker
